YORKVILLE BELLE'S SPEED,

HER VICTORY IN THE LADIES' STAKES.

PAST TIME ALTHOUGH SHE WON IN A CANTER-

OTHER RACES AT MORRIS PARK. The heat did not prevent the journeying of a large number of people to Morris Park yesterday, and there was sufficient excitement in the sport to reward them was sufficient excitement in the sport to reward them for the discomforts of the sultry air. In the Ladies' Stakes that superb filly Yorkville Belle glided over the course with her wonderfully smooth and graceful action. She did not appear to be moving fast, and at the finish she was pulled to a canter, and yet her time for the mile and a furlong was 1:56 1-2. Madrid was second, and Colonel Pepper's Ada Blue was beaten off. This was good work for the Withers Stakes to morrow. in which Yorkville Belle will meet Patron.

George E. Smith, otherwise known as "Pittsburg Phil, the Plunger," backed his colt King Cadmus to win a handsome sum for him in the fourth race. King Cadmus won by a short head, his success being due to Cambon's Smaller. Garrison's effective riding. Both the colt and the jockey exerted themselves to the utmost. When Mr. smith won $25,000 or $30,000 on King Cadmus last year wild rumors inflated the total of his gains to $1000,000. Reports were affoat yesterday that he had won $50,000, but some very conservative bookmakers put the sum at $7,000. The truth probably is that he won $12,000 or $15,000, possibly $20,000. Garrison received a generous present for his excellent work in the saddle. It is an odd coincidence that when Mr. Smith increased his bank account by the victory of King Cadmus last year the finish was very close and exciting, and King ous was first by a head only. These narrow margins when he has so much at stake may yet enfectile Mr. Smith's heart action. Just behind the head of King Cadmus came a group of other three-year-olds pell-mell, only heads apart. If Garrison had been on Junen, Shellbark or Doncaster, the second, third and fourth horses, he might have been first on any one of them. Fourteen run in the fourth race, which was for three-year olds only, and several of them had plenty of backing.

Correction had entirely recovered from her cough yesterday, but her race on Monday was so far below her best form that she was third choice only in the betting on the first race, Raceland being the favorite and Fairy second choice. But Correction won without urging, Raceland getting second place and Fairy third. Michael F. Dwyer backed Raceland both ways, both in the city poolrooms and at the track.
On Tuesday Masterlode ran last in a field of four.

and a miserable last, too. Yesterday he won the second race, well in hand, defeating the favorite Reckon, and also Lepanto. Sir Arthur and Kirkover. This naturally caused much talk, and Eshner, the owner of Masterlode, and the trainer, were questioned. They said that Masterlode ran away in his work be fore Tuesday's race, and that spoiled his speed Eshner had many tickets to show that he backed the horse on Tuesday, while he said that he put no mone on him yesterday. On Tue-day Masterlode carried 11: while yesterday he had only 113 pounds up These explanations were considered satisfactory.

This race probably benefited Reckon and she wil run better next time. Lepanto was ridden oddiy. The almost invariable practice pursued with W. C. Daly's horses is to send them to the front and keep them there as long as possible. But this time Lambley kept Lepanto back under a pull up to the last furlong and then tried in vain to catch Masterlede and Reckon. This was passing strange. Sir Arthur and friends, but he had no jockey-that is, Hutsell, who rode him, is not generally looked upon as a jockey, although he sits in a saddle.

Morris colt Frieze, full brother to Fides captured the Galliard Stakes, with so much in hand and with so beautiful action and absence of effort, that he was enthusiastically admired. He looks and moves like a high-class colt and ought to win many moves like a high-class colt and ought to win many stakes. Taral rode Pertier Jouet, and that fact gave that colt a slight lead over Frieze in the betting. But Frieze is a far better colt than Pertier Jonet, who ran third, John Hunter's handsome colt Hesperus getting second place. The Tammany leaders overrated Nathan Straus's colt Integrity, who won a poor race at Gravesend. Integrity could not get a place this time. Sime appears to have more success with Gertie D. than any other jockey. Under his guidance she won the last race readily, with Cynosure second, and the oddly but aptly named Tom Tough, the favorite, a poor third.

Correction was entitled to an allowance of five pounds in the first race, but as it was not elaimed at r third.

orrection was entitled to an allowance of five ones in the first race, but as it was not claimed at time of entry the stewards refused to grant it. ection did not need the allowance, and the relimade no difference in this case. But it was a tage decision.

Bolero swerved all over the stretch, but being tehind his horses did no hurt. Raceland ran on the right of the field for half a mile, then crossed over, and finished on the rall. Candelabra ran well for half a mile. The others were beaten all the way.

A TRAINER'S NOTES ABOUT THE HORSES.

The warm weather is just what many of the brainers have been looking for, as many of the two-year-olds are big in fiesh, and it was a difficult matter to get them in condition, as the cool weather, together with the rain, gave them a chance to fill up again after severe work had been given than given them.

The Ehrst horses were on the track early, as Trainer Allen likes to have all his work finished before the sungest high. Mr. Allen did no watch-breaking work with any of his lot. Josephine and Propriety do good work in private, and the former seems to be much the better of the pair. Don Alonzo and Lidgerwood are easily the best of pair. year-olds in training is in the state of Brown & Roses, and is a gelding by Sir Modred, dam Nellie Peyton. The coit has not been asked to do a great deal yet, as he is so big and "growthy." Mr. Rogers intends to save him until later in the season.

Matthew Byrnes gave the eleven in the Copper King's stable light work, finishing with a sharp brush through the stretch. Some of the horses in this stable look as if on the big side, but need only a few strong moves to John Huggins has fifteen in his charge, and never sends a hoise to the post unless he thinks that he is ready and can stand a bruising race. Mr. Huggins gives his horses strong work just inside a two-minute part, as he had them ready when he left Rancocas with them. Klikenny may start in the Withers Stakes to-morrow, as he won so easily on Tuesday that Mr. Lorillard thinks he is a much better horse in his ruces than in his work. Mr. Lorillard soid yesterday that he intended to have a sale at the end of the racing season, and sell all but three of the horses in training at present. There are twenty-seven yearlings that were bred at Rancocas that are to be soid at the same time and place. Mr. Lorillard may retain three of them on account of their breeding.

General Alexander 8. Webb said he acknowledged the bravery of their antagonists, but he despised the school which placed them where they had to fight. Treason was treason and he could never dignify treason by calling it heroism. He denied that his line had been penetrated Fickett, who, he said, got within the Union line by the doth changing front. The poem was read by James Jeffrey Roche, Editor of "The Boston Pilot." Speeches were afterward made by Generals Veasey for the First corps, Berdan for the sharpshooters and Martin for the Fifth corps. These were followed by Chief Justice Paxson, Colonel George Mende and Colonel Banes, of Philadelphia. The benefiction was pronounced by Dr. McKnight, of Pennsylvania College.
